A vendor with Countryside Farmers' Market since 2009

In 1974, David Wingenfeld purchased a farm on Tinkers Creek Road, in the heart of the Cuyahoga Valley. It became known as Swan Farm, and with the Erie Canal, Cuyahoga River and Tinkers Creek close by, the soil was perfect to begin his dream of farming. Sticking to organic gardening guidelines, the small vegetable farm grew into a year round operation that sold local residents a variety of fresh vegetables, pumpkins, herbs, and Christmas trees. Children have been visiting the farm on field trips for over 20 years and in 2009 the Wingenfeld family extended their farm into the Cuyahoga Valley National Park when they were given the opportunity to farm at the Gleeson Farm, down the street from Swan Farm and thanks to the Countryside Conservancy Initiative this farm has become Canal Corners Farm & Market. The Wingenfelds will continue to bring area residents, National Park visitors and local restaurants the freshest organic produce, while sticking to sustainable practices to preserve the natural beauty of the Cuyahoga Valley.
